TEACHING AND EXAMINATION

Distance teaching is supported by e-learning and other methods that allow at least partial contact with the teacher. The practical parts will be replaced as much as possible with online models, educational movies, etc.

Specific information including conditions for obtaining the credit will be added to the websites of the individual institutes and SIS in near future (as soon as possible).

Theoretical and preclinical education – summer semester continues according to the original schedule in distance form.

Clinical education – study blocks continue in distance form according to the schedule with consideration of specific information from the individual clinics.

Clerkships before State Exams – will be organized in a way that the students can fulfil the theoretical part on distance. The content of the practical part will be determined by the subject guarantors and reflect their current possibilities and specifics.

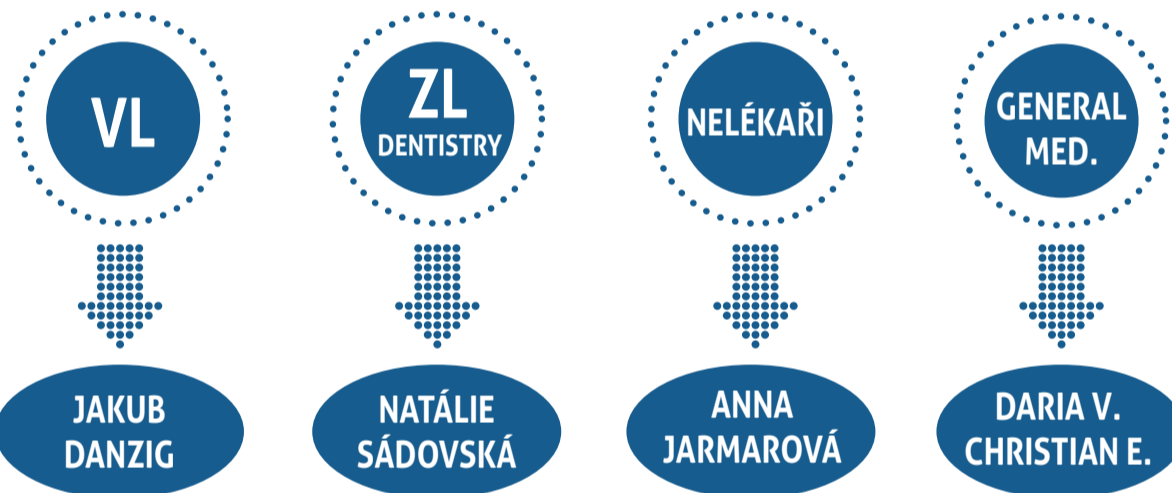

Examination – can not be held on-site at this time. In the 1st to 3rd years, dates will be listed according to the existing rules with respect to the current situation. In clinical subjects they will be opened according to possibilities. Distance forms of testing will be considered according to the evolution of the situation.

Final state examinations – will be held according to the situation. The faculty seeks a permission to publish the dates in a shortened time-frame of 2 weeks. The practical part will be adjusted according to further development.

Volunteering activity will be considered as a partial fulfillment of obligations towards the credit according to the rules of the individual subjects and their specific requirements.
